THE VETO.

The message of General Grant vetoing the currency bill, published in full The Narrow-Gauge Railroad Men in in another column, will be received by the west and south with dissatisfaction, utterly wanting as it is in sound reasons for a step that will cost him and his party more of popularity than just now they can afford to lose. President Grant Returns the Currency Bill to the Senate Without Approval.

His Reasons for a Veto that is Unquestionably in the Interest of the East.

A Very Poor and Unsatisfactory Document-Bad Logic-The Party, Not the People.

WASHINGTON, April 22,-The Presi-VETOING THE CURRENCY BILL.

To the Senate of the United States: Herewith I return senate bill No. 617, Herewith I return senate bill No. 617, entitled "An act to fix the amount of United States notes and circulation of national banks, and for other purposes." without my approval. In doing so I must express my regret at not being able to give my assent to a measure which has received the sanction of a majority of the legislators chosen by the people to make laws for their guidance, and I have studiously sought to find sufficient arguments to justify such assent, but unsuccessfully. Practically it is a question would give an additional dollar to the IRREDEEMABLE PAPER CURRENCY of the country or not, and whether by requiring three-fourths of the reserve to be retained by banks, and prohibiting interest to be received on the balance, it might not prove a contract, but the fact cannot be concealed that theoretically the bill increases paper circulation one hundred millions of dollars, less only the amount of reserve restrained from circulation by the provisions of the second section. The measure has been second section. The measure has oeen supported on the theory that it would give increased circulation, and it is a fair inference, therefore, that if in prac-tice the measure should fail to create the abundance of circulation expected of it, the friends of the messare, particularly those out of congress, would clamor for such as would give the expected relief. The theory, in my belief, is a departure from the true principles of finance, national interest, national obligations to creditors, congressional promises, party pledges on the part of both political parties, and of the personal views and promises made by me in every annual message sent to congress, and in each inauguration of congress. In the annual message to congress in December, 1869, the following passage appears:

Among the evils growing out of the rebellion, and not yet referred to, is that of a referred to, is that of a referred to, is that of a lived to the second to the second to the hope, will receive your most earnest attention to a duty, and one of the highest duties; the government, to secure to the claimen a m houses from their moorings and to set them afloat.

On the interest of the debtor class, Immediate resumption, if practicable, would not be desirable. It would compel the debtor class to pay beyond their contracts the premium on gold at the purchases, and would bring bankruptey to thousands. Fluctuations, however, in the paper value of the measure of all values, golds, is desirable to the interest of trade. It makes the man of business an involuntary gambler, for in all sales where future payment is to be made both parties specialate as to what will be the value of the currency to be paid and received. Treasurer Spinner opposes the proposed reduction of clerical force in the transmitten of the currency. The forty-four millions have ever been regarded as a reserve, to be used only in case of an emergency, such as has occurred on several occasions, and must occur, when, from any cause, the revenue suddenly falls below expenditures, and such a return of the limits.

A CINCULATING MEDIUM, imports being required in coin, a limited demand for gold, and about enough to satisfy that demand remains in the country. the advocates of the measure herewith returned, that there is an unequal distri-bution of the banking capital of the country. I was disposed to give great weight to this view of the question at first, but on reflection it will be remem-bered that there remain four millions of dollars of authorized bank-note circulation assigned to States having less than their quota of bank circulation, and have the option of twenty-five millions more to be taken from these States having more to be taken from these states hav-ing more than their proportion.
